CLAIMS 1-32 ARE PENDING

1. Claim 5 is objected to because of the following informalities:

The phrase: "...used to change in emphasis" appears to be improper grammar.

Appropriate correction is required.

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4, 6, 8, 15, 17-20, 22, 24 and 31 Belfiore et al (Belfiore), US 6,009,459, 28 December 28, 1999 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Belfiore et al (Belfiore), US 6,009,459, 28 December 28, 1999.

As to claims 1-4, Belfiore teaches a method for highlighting occurrences of searched text in a web page [COL 2 lines 29-34]. As noted at COL 1 lines 12-27, this involves running a web browser to send a search query that identifies a web site and returns a copy of a web page in HTML. As noted at COL 1 lines 64-65, the browser typically renders the display of the web page.

As to claim 6, FIG 5 depicts a highlight displayed as an underline and as bold type.

Art Unit: 2171

As to claim 8, Belfiore highlights search terms [COL 7 lines 6-28 and elsewhere], and search terms correspond at least to keywords and phrases. The examples of Belfiori also include a sentence: "Find windows" [COL 7 line 1].

The elements of claims 15, 17-20, 22, 24 and 31 are rejected in the analysis above and these claims are rejected on that basis.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 5, 7, 9-14, 16, 21, 23, 25-30 and 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Belfiore et al (Belfiore), US 6,009,459, 28 December 28, 1999 in light of Stone et al (Stone), US 6,504,554, 7 January 2003.

Belfiore does not explicitly address the details of determining textual formats in web pages with tag pairs. The claims listed above involve the use of tag pairs for this purpose.

Official Notice is taken that within HTML documents, formatting such as font, bold, size and the like are expressed with the use of tag pairs.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to highlight the search terms in Belfiore using tag pairs because this method was available as a feature of HTML.

Stone provides evidence of the formatting of web pages with tag pairs in the context of supporting the reuse of web pages [COL 1 lines 27-38]. In particular, the general structure of web page formatting is noted at COL 2 lines 1-11 and beginning at COL 5 line 66, and a specific example of the use of pairs of tags for this purpose is given at COL 6 line 12 and elsewhere.
